Dear Mr. President:

On looking back at the questionnaire which you filled in and returned to our Institute in 1943, we see that in reply to the question:

"Would you be interested in including in your curriculum any new course dealing with Southeast Asia?"

your answer was in the affirmative. You will since have received a copy of our "Survey of Studies on Southeast Asia at American Universities and Colleges", based on replies received both from your own and from other universities.

Due to unforeseen delay in the publication of our "List of Lecturers on Southeast Asia", which had been planned to follow the above Survey, we have been unable to send this to you before. It has, however, now been published, and we are glad to send you a copy enclosed.

The events of the war have made the American public conscious of the great importance of Southeast Asia, and of the need for more and better information on that region, and many universities are already realizing the need for developing the possibilities they offer to would-be students of the area.

We ask you to pay special attention to the introduction to this List of Lecturers, and would emphasize again that while we do not in any way function as a lecture agency, we shall always be glad to help if you care to approach us for advice about the planning of courses or lecture programs. We also offer you whatever bibliographical and other information is at our disposal for study and research on Southeast Asia and adjacent regions.

Very truly yours,

Mrs. Natalie Gurney
Adminis. Secretary

OBJECTS:

1. To stimulate or conduct scholarly studies and research relating to the Malay Archipelago, the Malay Peninsula, the Philippines, Burma, Siam and French Indo-China.
2. To serve as a bond of union among scholars and cultural institutions in the United States and in Southeast Asia for purposes of collaboration and coordination of information and research.
3. To promote in the United States better knowledge of Southeast Asia, its cultures and peoples.
4. To cooperate in furnishing scholarships and fellowships and to extend any other aid to students of Southeast Asia and its culture and to students from Southeast Asia who wish to study in the United States.
5. To publish and to encourage the publication of books, pamphlets, periodicals and articles dealing with Southeast Asia.

Introduction

During the survey of studies on Southeast Asia carried out by the East Indies Institute in 1942-43,* a considerable number of universities and colleges expressed a wish to add to their curricula courses on Southeast Asia.

In order to further such programs, as well as to meet constant requests from other educational institutions, government agencies, etc. for information on specialists able to lecture at the present time, the Institute decided to compile a list of experts able and willing to give either courses or single lectures on subjects relating to Southeast Asia. To these has been added a limited number of scholars who propose to lecture on neighboring or culturally related areas (India, East Asia, Oceania, Madagascar). The data given in the list were based on replies to questionnaires circulated to the experts concerned, and the fact that these replies were not always as detailed as the Institute would have wished, is responsible for the lack of uniformity in the information given.

The East Indies Institute of America wishes to make it clear that it does not in any way function as a lecture agency. It leaves to the interested institutions the initiative of obtaining further information from other available sources, and making arrangements direct with those who have expressed their readiness to lecture. The Institute will, however, always be glad to help, if approached to give advice about the organization of university courses or lecture programs. For its own records, it would also appreciate being informed of any engagements for courses or lectures brought about on the basis of this list.

It is regrettable that some of the outstanding specialists on Southeast Asia could not be included in this list, as they are in government service or overseas, and therefore not available for the duration of hostilities. At the end of the war it is intended to add their names and data in a supplement to this list, thus almost doubling its size.

The present list of potential lecturers is being distributed free of charge to universities, colleges, interested government agencies, museums and learned societies.
